Officers Question Indian in Regard to Death of Student

Secret Tribal Customs Are Thought to Hold Murder Secret

BODY FOUND FRIDAY

Young Woman Disappeared From Cabin Home Last Saturday

WHITE RIVER, Indian Reservation, Arizona.—(AP)—Secret tribal customs of the Apache Indians, was believed by authorities Saturday to hold the key to the death of Henrietta Schmeidler, 23-year-old Columbia University student, whose body was found in a ravine near Fort Apache late Friday.

Officers called the tribe leaders into a conference for an investigation but met taciturnity.

The girl, a student of Ethnology and Anthropology had lived alone in a cabin for a month.

Claude Gilbert, an Apache buck, held for investigation denies he saw the woman Saturday when she disappeared.

Authorities believe she came upon secret tribal rites in her studies and aroused the enmity of members.

There were no marks of violence on her body.

Unusual Illness Is Told By Physicians

Woman Has Been Living for Six Months Without Any Sleep

SALTILLO, Mex.—(AP)—A woman who has been living for six months without sleep has been discovered here.

The woman, who first was consigned to the Civil Hospital and later to the state penitentiary because of mental disorder, has not closed her eyes for six months, physicians said.

She was taken from the hospital because she sang continually, keeping other inmates from sleeping. At the prison she dug holes through the walls with her bare hands, which physicians say have the "strength of iron."

Physicians said she apparently had not suffered from her loss of sleep. The case is the first of its kind ever discovered in Mexico.

Suspect Held in Slaying of Boys

North Carolinian Linked With Crittenden County Double Murder

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—C. Rex King, 35, of Asheville, was held incommunicado Friday night while police investigated reports that he told several persons he was in Tennessee with Burton Hensley and Woodrow Wilson, Yancey county youths, whose bodies were found on a burning brush pile near Marion, Ark., last October 22.

Capt. Fred Jones, head of the City Detective Bureau, has wired Crittenden county (Ark.) authorities that he is holding King on a technical charge.

The bodies of the youths were found by two wood choppers. Both boys were unconscious when found and did not regain consciousness.

Officers here said that King had a watch in his possession which tallied with a description of a watch carried by one of the slain youths. King also had an automobile which recently had been painted. Officers said the car formerly was painted green, the color of a car in which the two youths were riding shortly before their bodies were found.

Jones said King admitted painting the car but said he bought it in Texas.

Former Hope Boy Radio Announcer

Artells Dickson, Born in Hope, Is Now Columbia Artist and Soloist

Artells Dickson, baritone, is another Columbia artist who came to radio from the stage. He has played in musical comedy, dramatic stock and vaudeville.

Born in Hope, Ark., August 28, 1909, Dickson, like so many other artists, made his first dramatic appearance in grade school. And in high school he was victor for three successive years in a singing contest.

After graduation Dickson came East and entered Columbia University, studying art and voice. But after two years the problem for the next five years he gave concerts with Lyceum and Chautauqua companies. Then he spent a season with musical and dramatic stock companies in Chicago later traveling the Paramount-Public circuit as soloist and master of ceremonies.

Dickson did extremely well in vaudeville, but the boredom of the itinerant attacked him and he went to New York and asked Columbia to give him a job. After passing the necessary audition test he was taken on as an announcer and sustaining artist and later developed into a solo artist.—Washington (D. C.) Post.

State Oil Office in Texarkana Opens

Office Temporarily Closed on July 1 Has Been Reopened

TEXARKANA.—(AP)—The Arkansas state department of oil and gas conservation has re-opened a branch office here with C. E. Harris, conservation agent, in charge.

The office was temporarily closed July 1 when several abandoned wells in the El Dorado field were being plugged and Harris was sent there to assist in supervising the work. The Texarkana office was opened first in September, 1930, following the discovery of oil in the Charles V. Lenz well 14 miles from here.

Although drilling activity in Miller county has been at a stand still for several months, Harris expressed the belief he would have at least three wells under way by fall. He said he was negotiating with several operators in an effort to attract them to this region.

PEACH CROP MOVES

Total of 50 Carloads Reported Shipped From Nashville

Watermelons went on the Hope market with full force Saturday, and commission houses reported total loadings of approximately 30 carloads by Saturday night. Fifteen cars had been reported up to Friday noon.

Similar activity was reported in the peach market at Nashville, where, a total of 50 carloads was expected to be reported out by Saturday night. Charles Ferguson, of the Nashville News, told The Star prices were very satisfactory.

The Nashville paper said quotations to the farmers were running $1.50 for No. 1's; $1 to $1.10 for No. 2's; and $1 on orchard run sold to trucks. Some peaches of the third quality were going for as low as 75 cents to trucks, according to other reports.

Watermelon prices continue uncertain, Saturday barely maintaining previous quotations of 25 to 40 cents, according to commission house reports to The Star Saturday.

Gales of rain and wind continued to sweep the southwestern counties Friday night. Nashville reported only a light rain, but there was a drenching downpour for one hour in Hope and central Hampshire county about 10 p. m. Friday.

A storm Thursday night threatened the great peach orchards around Nashville, but damage was believed limited to 10 carloads or less.

Associated Press advices from Fayetteville reported a 15 per cent loss in the apple crop from a storm there Friday—but bumper peach and apple yields made these losses negligible.

Speeding on Third Is Complained Of

Property Owners Report Planning to Petition Council Tuesday

Complaints of speeding on West Third street since that avenue was opened as the route of highway No. 67 through Hope, are expected to be filed at a special meeting of the city council next Tuesday by Third street residents.

The council has been called in special session Tuesday to consider a proposed ordinance in behalf of the State Highway Department and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads creating Third street as a zone of state regulation.

Third street residents are said to be preparing to send a delegation of 12 or 15 property owners before the council either to oppose the ordinance or to seek special police protection along the state highway route.

The route of No. 67 through Hope has been the subject of much controversy, Third street being chosen as a compromise between the present route along Division street, which the state and federal governments refused to consider, and Sixteenth street, which was opposed by the city as taking the highway out of town.

Howard, who killed Tom Slaughter, notorious desperado, after an escape from the Arkansas penitentiary several years ago, was implicated in the robbery by W. D. Lambert, escaped Louisiana convict, who also was in the accident.

Damage to Building Estimated at $20,000 to $50,000

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—Six persons, 25 of them children, have been identified as victims of the burning of the Hope Hotel, which was burned to death last night. The bodies of the victims were turned into a mass grave at the Hope hospital, where they were suffering Friday night and morning.

The coroner's office reported that the bodies of the victims were searched thoroughly and that the belief that more had been buried in the rubble was maintained.

Of the 26 bodies in the morgue, only three had been identified 12 hours after the fire.

Physicians fear that the heat among the rescued children will increase the number of fatalities.

The building was damaged to an estimated extent of $20,000 to $50,000.

Farmer's Slayer Given Seven Years

Jack Mullins, Tried for Killing of W. S. Wilson, Convicted

RISON, Ark.—After deliberating hours, the jury, trying the case of Mullins, charged with slaying W. S. Wilson, in a known farmer of the community, in a known case over pastureage for hogs, returned a verdict of guilty and fixed a term at seven years in the penitentiary. Mullins' attorneys filed notice of appeal. The case went to the jury 6 p. m. Friday.

Mullins, taking the stand after the shooting, gave his version of the case. He said he had no quarrel with Wilson, who had been wandering into his pasture and over pastureage for hogs, and that he had no reason to believe that Wilson was armed.

Wilson's sons said their father was killed without warning. Another son, who was with his father at the time, testified Mullins previously had threatened to kill the elder Wilson.

Approximately 50 witnesses were heard. Wilson was one of the leading framers in this section. Mullins formerly a Pine Bluff railroad man, is a share-cropper.

If you walk as a friend you will find a friend
Wherever you choose to fare;
If you go with mirth to a far strange land you
Will find that mirth is there;

And who walks with love for his fellow man
Answering love will strike.
For each of us builds the world he knows
Which only himself can spoil;

One of the most unique and attractive social affairs of the mid-summer season was the benefit bridge given on Friday afternoon at the Southern Ice & Utilities plant, with Miss Anna Norton, as hostess, for the benefit of the Hope Library association. The show room and the East landing platform was the setting for this delightful party. Graceful sprays of clematis and floor baskets filled with overflowing with lovely cut flowers placed at every point of vantage, and electric fans blowing cool breezes over cool blocks of clear crystal ice helped to make the occasion one long to be remembered by those present. Bridge was played from twenty tables, with the tallies and score pads being very clever pen and ink suggestions for the comfort and safety of the home, that could be derived from using the Southern Ice & Utilities products. Following the game, useful prizes were given at each table to the high scorer. The prizes were ice mallets, bags and shavers. Miss Norton, assisted by Miss Tyndie McWilliams, and a number of young ladies, served a most tempting two course plate lunch. The success of this delightful function was in no small degree due to the courtesy of Pat Simpson, local manager and his assistants at the plant. Garrison Drinking, Witness Testifies

San Diego Motorman's Statement Stronger Than at Preliminary Hearing

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—Testimony that Moss E. Garrison was "under the influence of liquor, but not drunk" when he boarded a street car the night of May 2, after allegedly murdering his sweetheart, Hazel Bradshaw, whose knifed body was found in Balboa park May 3, was given by J. M. Hughes, street car motorman.

Hughes was confronted with his testimony given previously at the preliminary hearing, when the motorman had said Garrison's breath that night "had the odor of wine" but that he thought the defendant was sober.

Defense Attorney A. Fairchild also attacked Hughes' statements that Garrison wore no tie when he boarded the street car. The state previously had introduced in evidence a necktie allegedly stained with blood.

"I noticed that he had no tie on when he stood by me talking," said Hughes.

"But at the preliminary hearing you said you didn't remember about the tie. How is it you remember now?" asked Fairchild.

"I've thought it over since," replied the motorman.

Hughes said that on previous occasions Garrison had boarded his street car, the last car on the line at night, at Monroe street or El Cajon boulevard intersections of Park boulevard, instead of walking "about a mile," as he did on the night of May 2, to University avenue and Park boulevard to get the car.

Compass of War Pilot Is Preserved

French-American Is Credited With Bringing Down 17 Enemy Planes

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A relic of the last fight of Major Raoul Lufbery, noted French-American war pilot, has come to the end of its journey in Smithsonian institution.

It is a flamed-seared compass, salvaged from the wreck of the burning Niuport from which the flier leaped to his death May 19, 1918, over Maron, near Tours, France.

A French soldier ripped the compass from the remains of the death plane and turned it over to Dr. F. Cautin, an army surgeon. Believing it should go to Lufbery's family, Cautin gave it in 1923 to an American named Codman.

Codman gave it to a brother, who turned it over to Dr. Philip W. Place, South Lincoln, Mass. After an unsuccessful search for a relative of Lufbery's, he has given the relic to the federal museum.

Lufbery, a globe-trotter and soldier of adventure, was born in France but reared in Wallingford, Conn.

In 1912, while in Calcutta, he met Marc Pourpe, a French aviator, and became his mechanic and close friend. When the world war broke out Pourpe enlisted in the air service and Lufbery joined the foreign legion.

Pourpe was killed in action and Lufbery, determined to avenge his death, joined the famous Lafayette Escadrille. When the United States entered the war he was transferred to the 94th and 95th pursuit squadrons.

He was officially credited with shooting down 17 planes, though unconfirmed victories are believed to have brought his total record to 40.

His death occurred while in pursuit of a German photographic plane. Flying at 2,000 feet his plane was seen to burst in flames and the flier jumped without a parachute.

ed the examination for the government printing department, Mr. Hampton of El Dorado has also accepted a position with the firm. Mrs. William McNeil, for a number of years with the office force, has resigned.

Church Magazine Cited in Key's Recall Fight

ATLANTA—(AP)—Mayor James Key, fighting a movement to recall him because he described prohibition as "a failure," Friday cited an editorial in a Baptist magazine of years ago as a prophetic confirmation of his present opinion.

The editorial in the May 1918 issue of the Christian Banner, Southwestern Baptist, was written by Henry H. Tucker, then pastor of Georgia and the Baptist University, and predicted a prohibition law never would be enforced. The editorial also said that those who allow a sentiment to dominate them are as drunk as the intoxicated as if saturated with whisky.
